

Interpreters for Eastern-European Languages

The Food Systems Economics and Policy Group (FSEP) is looking for interpreters for a research project on the socioeconomic implications of environmentally friendly farming, focusing on low-pesticide production practices in Swiss grapevine production. The goal of the interviews is to understand how and why the workers chose to work for their employer.

The interviews will take place between August and November 2024.

Your profile

- You are fluent in English or German and speak at least one of the following languages: Serbo-Croatian, Polish, Czech/Slovak, Bulgarian, Romanian, Slovenian, Russian, Ukrainian or Albanian
- You preferably have some experience of interpreting languages.
- You have background knowledge or interest in agriculture or labour-related topics.
- You are flexible, willing to travel with us to Swiss vineyards and enjoy interacting with people.

Conditions:

- 30 CHF/hour
- Max. 10 hours of work per language

To apply, send an email to Celestina Heepen (cheepen@ethz.ch) with the subject line “Interpreter” and attach the following documents:

- Short cover letter (max ½ page)
- CV (max 2 pages)

Application deadline: 15th of August 2024.

